

A Pass Educational Group is bidding on two projects involving the design of instruction for a K-12 audience. We are seeking part-time, contract instructional designers who are comfortable and have experience writing and designing lessons for learners at the elementary and secondary levels.

One project involves the creation of digital lessons aligned to a Grade 5 math curriculum. Much of the math content will be provided by the client, but IDs should feel comfortable working with math concepts and their real-world applications. These IDs will be developing detailed storyboards including audio scripts and artist instructions, and specifying animations and interactivity.

The second project involves the identification and/or creation of digital media assets to align to curriculum across multiple high school courses. These assets will help instructors develop blended activities that carry from school to home. It is unclear at this time whether the project will include courses from all subject areas across the curriculum.

If you are interested in either of these projects, please provide a resume and one sample of work done for an elementary or secondary audience. Send these to:
